

COUNTY MAY BUILD, REPAIR ALL DAMAGED BRIDGES

WELCOME OF ST. LOUIS TO 'LONE EAGLE'

Everything Else Forgotten Today to Honor "Lindy"

St. Louis, June 18.—(AP)—St. Louis soared to its zenith today in its formal and official welcome to its dauntless son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, its own "Slim," who flew his viking airplane, the Spirit of St. Louis from New York to Paris.

For four weeks, while the acclaim of Paris, London, Brussels, Washington and New York was shouted and dinned, St. Louis, for the last three years his home, stored up energy for its shouting of praise.

Today it had him and his historic ship and St. Louis took the day off to do him honor.

Official Holiday.

The day was an official holiday and, despite threatening weather, St. Louisans began to line the streets at dawn.

Many of those who lined the streets in front of boarded up windows came from out of town. Trains from every direction, busses and automobiles with a motley assortment of state license tags brought thousands bent upon a moment's glimpse of the hero of the age's glimpse adventure.

"Slim" gave himself into the hands of the St. Louis arrangements committee when he waited his plane down late yesterday at his home fly-

His Program Today

St. Louis, Mo., June 18—(AP)—Today's Lindbergh program follows:

9:30 a.m.—Reception committee extends official welcome.

10 a.m.—Parade starts downtown section.

12 noon—Parade terminates.

2:30 p.m.—Lindbergh leaves for Sportsman Park.

2:45 p.m.—Arrives at park to participate in Cardinal world championship flag raising ceremonies.

3:30 p.m.—Returns to hotel to rest remainder afternoon.

7 p.m.—Formal public dinner.

Complete Surrender.

His surrender was unconditional. "No, I won't try to give you the slip," he promised newspaper reporters, some of whom were experienced with the whims of the flyer.

And, under the guidance of the arrangements committee, determined to show their own hero to as many persons as possible today and tomorrow, Lindbergh got going at 6:17 o'clock this morning.

He and his mother appeared at the Congress Hotel, focal point of the great "Lindbergh-Spirit of St. Louis" parade.

Overhead flew three Scott Field dirigibles, the TC-52, TA-41 and the TA-52 as the heroic youngster was greeted by 1,500 spectators.

Some of the 1,500 spectators broke through the police lines and rushed towards Lindbergh.

Notables Honor Him.

Dwight Davis, himself a St. Louisian, secretary of war, Assistant Secretary of War, McCracken, Mayor Miller and army and navy officers awaited Lindbergh in the hotel's court yard.

With its start, there, the parade route lay through deep lines of snouting humanity.

In the reviewing stand near the Coronado Hotel, 15,000 persons, admitted by ticket only, waited hours to see the only formality of the parade—the induction of Lindbergh into the Boy Scouts as an honorary member of troop 2, the oldest in St. Louis.

The flyer's mother, Mrs. Evangeline E. Lindbergh, Detroit school teacher, received a bouquet of roses.

Before "Slim's" arrival in front of the reviewing stand, hands played continuously and thousands sang his praise "Hello Lindy, all America is proud of you" was the refrain of one of the songs they sang.

Former Head Armour Grain Co. Punished

Chicago, June 18.—(AP)—For the second time in three days the axe has fallen upon an official of the Armour Grain Company.

Following closely upon its expulsion of George E. Thompson, former general superintendent of the company, the Chicago Board of Trade last night found John Kellogg, former president of the Armour grain concern, guilty of dishonorable conduct and ordered him suspended for two years from the Board of Trade.

The charges against Kellogg as against Thompson, involved alleged connivance in deals between the grain company and the Grain Marketing Corporation, a cooperative concern in which the Armour company was interested.

A third grain company official, K. V. R. Nicol, vice president, went to trial before the Board of Trade governors today.

Cleveland Fireman Gives Name to Plane Company

"Gulf Coast Special" Wrecked Early Today

SEVERE STORM NEARLY STRUCK THE PRESIDENT

Chaffeur Sped Up to Get Executive Out of Storm's Path

Rapid City, S. D., June 18.—(AP)—Several hundred small-town newspaper editors and publishers came into the Black Hills today to hold an Elk and Buffalo barbecue close to the summer White House and to be received by President and Mrs. Coolidge.

They comprised the delegates and guests of the National Editorial Association's convention which was held in Omaha and which is making a post-convention tour of this section of the country. A half mile from the state game lodge workmen prepared for the big outdoor event.

There was a hint that President Coolidge, drawn by what appears to be a zest to get the most out of his vacation, might decide to become part of the gathering but should such tentative plans be laid aside, the editors were to be received by the President at the state game lodge.

The President's rising hour was set early and there were fresh trout for the breakfast table caught by Mr. Coolidge last evening just before dinner.

Escaped Bad Storm

The President's chauffeur saw the storm, which struck Rapid City yesterday, breaking and speeding to get Mr. Coolidge safely in the game lodge. After going considerable distance in Rapid City the storm spent itself without striking the area in which the summer White House is located.

During the summer the President expects to confer with representatives of industry, agriculture and commerce. He has made no engagements but has been looking forward to a visit by Ambassador Sheffield of Mexico.

Mr. Coolidge is deeply appreciative of the courtesies extended him here and the President himself authorized that statement that his summer residence "is exactly what I like."

To Church Tomorrow

Tomorrow the President and Mrs. Coolidge plan to motor to Hermosa, a small hamlet not more than a wide space in the road, to attend a tiny Congregational church which is not unlike that to which they go when in Plymouth.

The President put on a ten gallon hat of a size and shape that would make a movie actor or a cowboy justly envious, slipped on a pair of rubber hip boots and went to Squaw creek early today to angle for mountain trout.

NEWMAN DENIES BIRGER'S STORY OF PRICE DEATH

Gangsters' Chief Had Accused Informer of the Killings

Belleville, Ill., June 18.—(AP)—Art Newman, in jail here accused of complicity in the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, today broke the silence he has maintained since being locked up here, long enough to vigorously deny insinuations made this week by Charles Birger in the Washington, Ill., jail to the effect that Newman was responsible for the death of Mr. and Mrs. Lory Price.

Newman reiterated the story he told a week ago in which he charges Birger killed Price and that three of his followers slew Mrs. Price and threw her body in an abandoned mine where it was later found.

Newman described Birger as a man who slew without compunction. "I never killed but one person in my life," said Newman, "and I shot him in self defense." He referred to the killing of Charles Gordon in East St. Louis a few years ago.

FATHER WILL BE REMEMBERED BY 'KIDS' TOMORROW

Nationwide Recognition of Dad's Part in Family Life

Father, the man who works for us and pays our bills, up to and sometimes after the time we're able to make our own way, comes in for his recognition tomorrow. For Sunday is Father's day, when all over the country thoughts will turn to the nominal head of the house and the debt that every son and daughter owes to him.

Probably he would say, if asked about it, that his part in the family life isn't much and that he doesn't want any fuss made. But don't be fooled—a bit of adulation hits the right spot with him, as with us all, and makes life a little pleasanter than it was before.

The annual celebration has come to be nearly on a par with Mother's Day in the extent of its scope and the amount to which people generally join in it. Just as is the case with similar occasions, the best way to show what one thinks of dad is to give him a token of that regard.

Started in 1910.

Father's day was a subject of merit when first broached in 1910 by Mrs. John B. Dodd of Spokane, Wash. We loved dad and all that, but for dragging him into the sentimental spotlight and garlanding his homely, corrugated brow such as we did mother's—it just didn't seem to come natural. And besides, would the dear old truck horse stand without hitching, during the operation?

Shies at Sentiment.

For if there is anyone who shies at sentiment it is the average father. He didn't seem to understand at first mildly wondering what the idea was all about, making a fuss over him. But the passing years steadily have proved the originator of the plan builded better than she knew. Father's day finally has become so firmly established that it is safe to predict Mrs. Dodd will take her place in the history of special observance days, along with Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who is credited with originating Mother's day.

National Father's day got off to a poor start when it first joined the calendar. One reason was the lack of united action on the part of its various sponsors. Different sections of the country selected different dates, causing much confusion.

In 1914 a special congressional resolution was adopted designating the first Sunday in June as the national day on which to honor Uncle Sam's collective daddies. But it was only a resolution. It takes the commonwealths individually to pass laws making legal holidays, and long before congress sat up and noticed Father's day, Delaware and other states had recognized it by special legislation.

But evidently the time was not yet right for national observance. Father's day lagged on for years until in 1929 the first concerted movement was begun to make the day really a national event, the time being changed to the present date, the third Sunday in June. Since then Father's day has grown fast in public affection and popularity.

Flowers Custom.

The desire to honor dad may be expressed in numerous charming ways. The red rose usually is worn in honor of the living father; though corn flowers and dandelions also are chosen, the latter custom started by the Martin W. Callender Bible class of Wilkinsburg, Pa. It is supposed to typify the idea that dad's spirit can't be crushed, no matter how much he is walked on. The sadder side of Father's day is typified in the white rose, the symbol worn for fathers who have passed.

Thousands of churches in the United States and Canada will hold Father's day services; leading movie theaters will give elaborate programs for fathers, who will be admitted free and presented gifts; various organizations will honor him; the radio will broadcast his neglected virtues; mayors will issue proclamations. But the main point is: what are you—his family—going to do?

If you string around your finger tonight will help you remember tomorrow is Father's day—do so! But tying a tie around dad's neck or roasting him some little gift, will be even better proof that you remembered him—on his day.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Alexander have gone to Springfield, Mass., to visit the former's mother, who is in her ninety-fourth year.

MISSING BANKER FOUND DYING IN WEST FRANKFORT

Worry of His Recent Abduction Cause of His Suicide

West Frankfort, Ill., June 18.—(AP)—W. R. Todd, 35-year-old world war veteran, and cashier of the First National Bank here, died here early today from a bullet wound in his head, which police believed was self-inflicted.

Todd, who had been missing from his home and place of business since 8 a. m., Thursday, was found wounded and unconscious last night in the basement of a vacant house here. Beside him lay an automatic pistol with one shot fired.

Todd's affairs at the bank were in good condition, according to John W. Dye, national bank examiner, who today characterized Todd as a very exacting official.

Relatives advanced a theory that Todd's mind had become deranged from worry over an abduction and robbery to which he was subjected last February 18. His home life and personal affairs were said to be normal.

Todd was president of the Franklin County Bankers' Association last year and at the time of his death was president of the Lions Club.

Sewer Cave-in Has Closed Evansville Factories for Time

Evansville, Ill., June 18.—(AP)—A cave-in of a sewer that empties into the Ohio river near the Evansville business district became so enlarged today that it threatened several buildings on the river front.

To avert further collapse of the sewer, officials ordered the closing down of the Southern Indiana Gas & Power plant, which pours a great amount of water into the sewer.

This plant supplies Evansville and several southern Indiana cities with power.

Although shutting off the power plant apparently saved the water front buildings, the discontinuation of power meant the closing down of factories and commerce houses. It is estimated it will take two days to repair the sewer.

BIDS OF ALL CONTRACTORS HELD TOO BIG

Committee Sees Way to Effect Saving by County Work

The reconstruction and repair of approximately $50,000 worth of bridges and culverts in Lee county which were damaged by the heavy spring rains, may be undertaken by the road and bridge committee, it became known today. When the bids of all contractors were rejected by the committee a week ago as being excessive, it was then decided to investigate through construction work done by the county.

Today it was estimated that a material saving could be effected from the announcement given out from the office of County Superintendent of Highways, Fred W. Leake, Chairman William Burdick of the road and bridge committee had summoned the members to meet here early Monday morning for a tour of inspection of all townships in the county where repair work is necessary. At the end of the trip, the committee will decide as to their future action. It was stated today that with the committee taking charge of the reconstruction and repair work a marked saving could be made in both cement and gravel and it was thought likely that the work would be carried on in this manner.

Arrange for Financing

The program of repairing and rebuilding county aid and county bridges and culverts was thoroughly canvassed at this week's meeting of the board of supervisors and arrangements were made for the financing of the plan. The road and bridge committee was empowered to proceed with the reconstruction program and to carry out the work in as economical a manner as possible. Funds are available for the repair of county structures, but bridges and culverts on county aid roads will not be paid for until the September meeting of the board. The work is to be started as early as possible and is to be financed from the surplus earnings of the county offices.

The road and bridge committee will continue the travelling program in the various townships of the county this year as in the past, $33,000 to be expended in this program. Five townships have already started grading of roads and others will follow in the next few days. Every township in the county is favorable to the gravel surfaced and several miles of gravel surfaced roads will be added this season.

The funeral party will be taken to Franklin Grove in a special car on the train which will arrive there at 12:42 Monday noon, and the car will be set out. ### Two Dixon Teams to Play Games Tomorrow

The Dixon Browns will play Harmon's crack team Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Brown Field. Lightner and Larkin will be Dixon's battery, while Schoof and Drew will officiate in the points for the visitors.

The game will give Dixon fans, who can not get to a radio to hear the Cubs-Pirates battle in Chicago, an afternoon of amusement.

"Doc" McCoy's reorganized Colts baseball team will play their opening game of the season Sunday afternoon at Walton. Both teams are evenly balanced with Walton having the advantage of having played several games while the Colts are opening their schedule. A dark horse will do the serving for the Colts and the fans are assured a hard fought game.

Miss Annie Eustance arrived this afternoon from Santa Fe, New Mexico, where she has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. T. Schuler who has been spending the winter there.

JNO. R. THOMPSON WELL KNOWN COOK COUNTY MAN, DEAD

Made Fortune in "One Arm Chair" Eating Houses There

(Picture on Page 1)
Chicago, June 18—(AP)—John R. Thompson, who rose to the heights by feeding millions in his "one-arm chair" restaurants, is dead.
A battle against heart disease for six years ended in defeat yesterday when Mr. Thompson died without pain at The Highlands, his Lake Forest estate.
The profits gained from a general store in Vermillion County, Ill., supplied the initial capital with which John R. Thompson made a fortune in "one-arm" white tile cafeterias.
The self-made idea was not his, but he capitalized it on such a large scale that today there is a "Thompson" in nearly every large city in the country.
In 1891, Thompson bought a small restaurant on South State Street, Chicago, Number 1 of his eventual chain of eating places. The restaurant was notorious for the number of times, and the speed with which it had been "turned over." Thompson found a friend the place must have been a "stock in trade" for a chattel mortgage house, which received a substantial cash payment each time the restaurant changed hands.
Phenomenal Expansion.
But Thompson turned the tide of that lunchroom's misfortunes, he paid off his mortgage and made money. He added two Chicago restaurants to his "string" in 1894 and began thereafter with a phenomenal expansion of the catering business which had no precedent. As his business enlarged, he instituted quantity buying and standardization of equipment.
The John R. Thompson Company was incorporated in 1907. A $6,000,000 corporation took over the business in 1914, although the controlling interest remained with its founder. A group of 70 groceries in Chicago, which Thompson started in 1920, was sold to syndicate in 1924.
His first 16 years spent on a farm in Vermillion county, Ill., where he was born in 1865, Thompson attended normal school and later opened a general store in Elthian, near his home. But in 1891 he sold the store, married Rose Holloway of Georgetown, Ill., and came to find a business.

Active Republican

He served as Republican county committeeman for years and was treasurer of Cook County from 1907 to 1911. After being defeated in the Chicago mayoralty race, he retired from politics in 1912 at his wife's request. He was a warm supporter of Theodore Roosevelt in the latter's Bull Moose campaign.
During the World War he executed several confidential missions for the Emergency Fleet corporation of the shipping board. National attraction was brought him when, in 1921, he advocated cessation of the manufacture and sale of pistols, offering $1,000 to any person who would show him "why they should be sold."
Announced he would build a 22-story hotel, at a cost of between five and six million dollars for the accommodation of the rural merchant when he came to town. Thompson in 1922 purchased a corner site in Chicago's downtown business district. A few years later plans were still pending for the building, but it was announced the hotel would be erected.
Had String of Horses.
Until 1924 Thompson owned a large breeding farm at Libertyville, Ill., where his string of horses, most of them sired by Azoff, were trained. He took many horse show ribbons and race track purses with his thoroughbreds.
Franz Hals "The Laughing Mandolin Player," for which he paid $250,000, topped his distinctive collection of canvases, chiefly painting of the Italian Renaissance school. His art works were valued at nearly $1,000,000.
He had two daughters, Florence H. and Ruth E. His son John R. III, in late years looked after most of his father's business affairs.

S. W. BRUNDAGE SHOWS AT ROCK FALLS NEXT WEEK

The Firemen of Rock Falls will hold their annual carnival in that city the week of June 20. The S. W. Brundage shows will furnish the attractions, this company having played there several times in the past and always has given the best of satisfaction.
The Brundage shows will offer many new features this trip. It is announced. Twenty big attractions will have a place on the midway, including seven thrilling rides. Twenty-five cars are used to transport the shows and 200 persons are connected with the organization. The carnival will arrive in Rock Falls Sunday from Davenport, Iowa.
Many special events are being planned by the Firemen for their carnival this year, and it is the aim of the committee in charge to make this year's festival the greatest they have ever staged.

On his way to the Black Hills President Coolidge stopped at Hammond, Ind., to dedicate Wicker Memorial Park, a township's unique testimonial to its World War dead. The arrow points to the President above, the inset showing the chief executive before the microphone. A crowd estimated at 200,000 people attended the ceremonies.

OLD MASTERS

The bubbling brook doth leap when I come by.
Because my feet find measure with its call;
The birds know when the friend they love is night,
For I am known to them, both great and small.
The flower that on the lonely hill-side grows
Expects me there when spring its bloom has given;
And many a tree and bush my wanderings knows,
And even the clouds and silent stars of heaven;
For he who with his Maker walks aright,
Shall be their lord, as Adam was before;
His ear shall catch each sound with new delight,
Each object wear the dress that then it wore.
And he, as when erect in soul he stood,
Hear from his Father's lips that all is good.
—James Verrill: Nature.

Happy Meeting at Y, Held Last Evening

A fine meeting of mothers and daughters in preparation for Y Camp was held at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. Camp girls and mothers met for a pep meeting. The meeting was opened with a musical program. Mrs. Katherine Ballou and Mrs. Allan Read rendered several numbers which were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Alberta Peterson pleased the audience with a piano solo. Mrs. Yohn then presented the camp program and presented members of the staff a very thorough explanation regarding all regulations and rules. It was hoped that more mothers would be present as it is well for them to be well informed in these things. If mothers have questions to ask or further information please call the Y some time Saturday or Monday morning.

A new group of songs were sung by all present and then the meeting adjourned.

There are thirty girls registered for Camp and it is urged that all be at the Y at 1 o'clock sharp Monday, ready to go.

A special request for cars to transport these girls is made. Any one wishing to render this service please call the Y. A goodly number is necessary to accommodate this group with their luggage. Those wishing to help please call Mrs. Yohn.

American War Mothers Meeting

The Lee County Chapter of American War Mothers met in G. A. R. hall Friday afternoon with a very good attendance. The meeting opened in the usual form and one verse of "America" was sung with Mrs. Nettie Cookley at the piano.

The treasurer being absent, the report was not given; but the secretary's report was read and approved. The reports of the different committees were given. Mrs. Elliott, chairman of the hospital committee, reported the food sale held last Saturday was very successful. John H. Byers gave a very interesting talk to the ladies. All business was then transacted and after the penny drill the meeting was dismissed to meet in G. A. R. hall the first Friday in July.

RADIO INSTALLED for President Coolidge

Although President Coolidge will be miles from a railroad or town all summer in the Black Hills of South Dakota, he will be able to spend his evenings listening to concerts being given in the metropolitan centers of the country, because of the activities of the radio industry. A receiving set designed by Dr. F. A. Kolster, formerly head of the U. S. Bureau of Standards radio laboratory and now chief research engineer of Federal-Brands, Inc., has been installed in the State Game Lodge for the President's personal use.

Since the appointment of the Federal Radio Commission, Mr. Coolidge has taken a keen interest in radio, listening in often at the White House with a set built by the Bureau of Standards. In order to provide him and Mrs. Coolidge with entertainment after a day of fishing or hiking in the picturesque Black Hills, arrangements were made to place the Kolster receiver in the

THE BONES OF BLACK HAWK.

Dr. J. R. Hollowbush of Rock Island recalled in an interview that the bones of Chief Black Hawk had been in possession of one of his antecedents in Quincy. He said that he believed the skeleton was returned to Iowa upon request of Governor Lucas and that it was burned in the museum of a historical society. Dr. R. C. J. Meyer of Hillsdale sent a communication to the Dispatch in which he said his information was that the bones were supposed to have been burned, but were not.

Believing that if the bones of Black Hawk were consumed in a fire in a collection of a historical society, the Iowa historical department would have authoritative information, the Dispatch addressed Edgar R. Harlan, curator, with an inquiry. He answered:

"I think there is no dispute as to the fact that the body of Black Hawk was exhumed, his bones cleansed and articulated for illustrative purposes by a lecturer on a then novel and popular theme of phrenology, and on the demand of Black Hawk's wife and sons were recovered by Governor Lucas, and with the consent of Black Hawk's relatives placed among the materials of a historical society in Burlington. A fire destroyed the collections, Black Hawk's bones with the rest."

Governor Lucas was the first territorial governor and served from 1838 to 1841, at which time Burlington was the "principal city."

Mr. Harlan submitted further an article that appeared in Gregg's Monthly in 1873, which included a letter to Gregg from D. C. Beaman, who, at Gregg's request had interviewed James H. Jordan, who owned the land on which Black Hawk lived and died. After referring to an attempt to steal the body of the Indian chief, Beaman said:

"Other attempts were made during the spring and summer to obtain the body, but without success, until the night of July 3, 1839, one Dr. Turner of Lexington, Iowa, succeeded in getting the head, and during the following winter also got the body and the medals, and took the body to Alton, Ill., for the purpose of having the bones wired together."

"Loss of the body caused the widow and sons of the chief to grieve, and they made application to Governor Lucas to try to recover it, but its whereabouts could not then be ascertained."

"However, the man who wired the skeleton fell out with Turner about the price, and wrote to Governor about the skeleton. The governor sent and recovered it, and wrote to Jordan that he had it. Jordan informed the family, and they went to Burlington to get it. But, as the tribe was about to remove west, and the bones were in safe keeping they concluded to leave them with the governor until the tribe became permanently located and then send for them. The bones were deposited in the museum of the historical society at Burlington, and were destroyed with it by fire soon after."

To this letter Mr. Gregg, the editor, added:

"Whether the bones of Black Hawk ever went to Alton to be wired I can not say, but there is indisputable evidence that they were in the office of Dr. Hollowbush, a dentist of Quincy, and were taken thence by the agent of the Governor of Iowa."—Moline Dispatch.

THE ANIMATES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"Well, greetings, son," said Old King Roar. "I guess 'tis well I came once more. You ought to know an octopus is dangerous as can be. It happens I was up on land, and Cappy made me understand that you were much in trouble so I came down here to see."

Then Scouty said: "You saved my life. I didn't even have a knife with which to fight the octopus. I sure was scared to death. At first I fought with all my might, and then I squeezed me mighty tight, so I just stopped by battle 'cause I couldn't catch my breath."

"Oh, well, there is no use to 'morn," the old king said. "Why be forlorn? I think that you have had enough of fun beneath the sea. If you on land you'd like to go, don't hesitate, just to tell me so. The other Tines, so they said, are lonesome as can be."

Said Scouty, "Yes, I guess you're right. I've had enough of fun—and fright. But how am I to find my way unless you take the lead?" "Oh, that is easy," said the king. "One of my trained seals I will bring so you can ride him. Then for me to go there'll be no need."

The pompous man then took two stones. When hit together they made tones, that traveled through the water like a wireless telegraph. This was a signal for the seal. As Scouty turned upon his heel, he saw the funny animal which promptly made him laugh.

"All right," the king said, "hop aboard and shortly he will take you toward the place where all the Tines are. Be sure and hold on tight." So Scouty hopped upon its back, and where the king stood, all turned black. The next thing that wee Scouty knew, the king was out of sight.

(Scouty has a thrilling ride on the seal in the next story.)

Flashes in the Argonne—
The walls of a dugout in the Bois de la Gruerie, near LaFayette and Les Islettes are two feet thick. The roof is of four-foot concrete, topped by vertical and horizontal layers of inch-thick iron. This structure, with tunnels leading 300 feet into the ground, was occupied by Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria before the 77th American division claimed the property.

At Gesnes—a monument marking the spot where the 362d U. S. Infantry turned back on Sept. 29, 1918 turned back when orders came to withdraw because the soldiers were too far ahead of the troops on the right and left.

At the Moulin de Champigneulle, a few walls remain—and the sparkling Argon gurgles over the rocks where the dam used to be.

Near Apremont and Monthlaineville—miles after miles of rusted, weed-grown railroad—built by Americans—unused since the Armistice.

In Sivry-les-Buzancy—four workmen wrecked a two-story wall of a shell-wrecked house with crowbars.

At Varennes—the columned monument erected by the people of the state of Pennsylvania in memory of the 25th division's achievement in capturing the town—and below it, near the banks of the Aire, an American doughboy's helmet, with two tiny holes in it.

At Bourreilles—or where it used to be—there is nothing. The town has been moved a mile further down the road—and is quite prosperous.

At Nantillois—a cure walking, using a long stick as a cane, his long black frock trailing in the dust of the road.

At Le Four de Paris—only a cross-roads shrine. Le Four de Paris once had nearly 700 inhabitants.

At the Cornay-Fléville railroad station—the gates are lowered one hour before the train comes in.

SAINT and SINNER

At the breakfast table the next morning Faith found it hard to believe that Cherry had suffered such a severe attack of hysterics the night before that she had required the services of a doctor. For Cherry was as gay and lovely and dewy-fresh as if she had slept an uninterrupted nine hours.

Faith, passing from kitchen to dining room on constant errands connected with cooking and serving the breakfast, had the desolate feeling that she had slipped back into her role of family drudge, that Cherry had again taken her place as star in the drama which she always made of life.

"Some more toast, darling," Cherry asked sweetly, as Faith had taken her seat for a moment between pilgrimages to the kitchen. "And I'd like a little hot water for my tea. The doctor is mean not to let me have coffee."

Faith started to rise obediently, but Bob stretched out a hand to detain her. "Sit where you are, Faith, and eat your breakfast. I'm not going to have you waiting on us like a servant. I'll get the fresh toast and the hot water."

When he had passed through the swinging door into the beautiful blue and white kitchen, Faith bowed her head on a trembling hand, her eyes closing over threatening tears.

"Why don't you wait on yourself, I'd like to know?" Joy demanded shrilly of Cherry. "You ain't sick. I think you're just mean to Faith, ordering her about all the time."

"Oh, I'll wait on myself!" Cherry flamed, rising from the table so abruptly that her chair fell over. "But I didn't know I was supposed to be a servant—oh, Faith, I'm sorry! Don't cry, darling! Forgive me! I'm just a selfish little beast! You mustn't let me be mean to you, Faith!"

"Here's your toast, Cherry," Bob said busily, having come into the room unheard by the sisters. "And today I'm going to arrange for a maid to take most of this sort of thing off your hands, Faith. My wife isn't going to be a family drudge."

Jim Lane, who had come shuffling into the dining room, unshaven and in carpet slippers, stopped before he reached his chair, surveyed the flushed and embarrassed group around the breakfast table, and then padded drearily into the kitchen. Faith, stung to fresh tears by the thought of what he must be feeling, followed him hurriedly, after one long, reproachful glance at Bob. She found her father fumbling in the kitchen cupboard for cup and saucer, his hands trembling so that the dishes rattled.

"I'll wait on myself," he insisted stubbornly, and after a bit Faith had to leave him, crouching over a stool beside the little white enamel kitchen table, the coffee pot and two pieces of toast before him.

She found Cherry chattering brightly, her voice lilting with excitement and approval.

"I think the matter is settled, Cherry," Faith interrupted crisply. "You'll send someone from the agency today, dear?" she added to Bob, bending over him to remove an imaginary thread from his coat with an air of wifely possessiveness. And there was healing for her sore heart in Bob's instant response, the way he drew her quickly to his side, his arm clasp her waist.

MONDAY—Cherry is again a "heroine."

Turning unsightly vacant lots from weed patches into beautiful gardens is a splendid project for any community.

New London, Conn., has shown what can be done if the city gets back of a movement of this kind.

Fifteen hundred lots were put under cultivation in New London last year.

First the Chamber of Commerce secured several large tracts of suitable land, some from the city, some from schools. Heads of families out of employment were engaged to clean, rake and burn up rubbish. If they got it. Men and teams plowed, harrowed and prepared for planting. Plots averaged 50 by 100 feet each.

Then there was general publicity. All who wanted a plot for a garden called at the offices. Plots cost from $1.50 to $2, depending upon size.

Some families raised sufficient food-stuffs to last them all winter. Dirty and unsightly lots were eliminated. Hundreds of boys and girls were kept off the streets in useful work. Prizes offered promoted competition. The commercial organization's reward came in knowing that a worth while job was well done.

The garden movement is not a war time proposal. It's good every year.

No idle water!

THE ALUMINUM CYRATOR CREATES AN UNUSUALLY TURBULENT WATER ACTION

NO WATER LINE
THE MAYTAG TUB CAN BE FILLED TO THE BRIM

THE scientific design of the Maytag cast-aluminum tub, together with the gyrator action, creates an unusually cleansing, more turbulent water condition in every inch of the tub all of the time. A water action that puts every drop of water—every bit of soap suds at work.

This more cleansing water action, found only in the Maytag, washes clothes clean in half the usual time—washes bigger tubfuls in but 3 to 7 minutes. Does a whole washing—50 pounds of clothes (dry weight) in one short hour. Washes everything without hand-rubbing—even collars, cuffs and wristbands.

The Maytag has no waterline. A few pieces are washed just as effectively in a paiful of water as a big tubful of clothes are washed with the tub filled to the brim with water.

Phone the nearest Maytag dealer! Use a Maytag in your own home without obligation or expense. Test it thoroughly. Compare it with other washers. If the Maytag doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS RUTH IS SLOWLY CLIMBING UP IN HITTING CONTEST

Is Also Keeping Apace
With His Record in Home Run Dept.

Chicago, June 18—(AP)—It won't be long now, until Babe Ruth is up in his rightful place among the first ten hitters of the American League. Starting the season with a lovely .233, for the first week, the home run king has climbed a few notches at a time until he is 15th in the list of regulars today, in figures including Wednesday's games, with a mark of .340.

Along with his ordinary base hits, the Babe has kept pace with the schedule of his record breaking home run year of 1921. Half of his 66 hits have been for extra bases, among them 21 homers.

Crowded out of first place in the American League hitters for a few weeks, Bing Miller of St. Louis has snapped back into the front, with the only .400 mark of the circuit.

This week's newcomer among the sluggers is Jimmy Dykes of Philadelphia, now one of Connie Mack's regulars, who made nine hits in his five games, sending him from 13th place to fifth.

Shulte, St. Louis veteran, displaced his teammate Ken Williams in tenth place, below which are hovering Harry Heilmann, old Zack Wheat, Williams, and Bud Clancy, the White Sox first base find.

Stolen Base Honors.
There are four players with eight stolen bases apiece, on the trail of the league leader, Goose Goslin of Washington, who passed the field with two more this week to total ten. Al Simmons, George Burns, Bill Humeffield and Lou Blue are in the tie.

The two White Sox flingers, Ted Lyons and Al Thomas, stand out conspicuously among the Johnson circuit pitchers with their victories running into double figures. Lyons has won nine in a row, with 12 altogether, and Thomas has grasped victory ten times. The Yankees broke "Honey" winning streak, but Lyons hurled the Sox to their only victory over New York to keep his string clean.

Leading hitters of the American League are: E. Miller, St. Louis, .400; Gehrig, New York, .389; Schang, St. Louis, .388; Simmons, Philadelphia, .387; Dykes, Philadelphia, .378; Meusel, New York, .377; Cobb, Philadelphia, .374; Goslin, Washington, .374; Fothergill, Detroit, .367; Shulte, St. Louis, .352.

In National League.
Frankie Frisch is now right on the heels of his rival, Rogers Hornsby, only two points separating them in the batting averages compiled today, including Wednesday's games. Hornsby's slump has carried him to .363 while Frisch gained to .361. The absence of Manager McGraw on an ivory hunt, leaving the managerial duties solely to Hornsby, probably affected his batting eye on this western trip.

The ex-senator, Joe Harris, who was waived out of the American League, has become the sensation of the Heydler loop, and has raised his clouting mark to .451. His good example has inspired Barnhart, the Pirates new outfielder, and Paul Waner, until the three Dreyfuss boys are now clustered at the top of the column, Barnhart also having a fine .400 mark.

The Giants parted with one of their leading hitters this week, trading Farrell to Boston through he still hovers around the top of the list.

Hack Wilson, the Cubs long distance hitter, whose bleacher drives have helped the Cubs to accumulate twelve straight wins, is well in front of the four base knockers now with 13, two better than old Cy Williams of the Phillies.

Root "Iron Man".
Frisch has also speeded up on the paths and now is leading the major league champion, Kiki Cuyler of Pittsburgh, by one theft. Frisch has 16, gathering two this week.

Manager McCarthy of the Cubs is making an iron man out of Charley Root, with considerable success, for Root leads the circuit in victories with eleven. Jess Haines of the Cardinals is the only other twister in double figures, having ten wins, with but three defeats as against four charged to Root. Root has toiled in parts of twenty games, doing relief duty between his regular turns on the hill.

Leading hitters in the National League are: Harris, Pittsburgh, .451; Barnhart, Pittsburgh, .400; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .389; Farrell, Boston, .383; Hornsby, New York, .363; Frisch, St. Louis, .361; Harper, New York, .356; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .351; Goeh, Pittsburgh, .343; Lindstrom, New York, .340.

FOURTH MEMBER AMERICA'S CREW STILL UNCERTAIN

Many Women Would Like to Accompany
Byrd on His Flight

New York, June 18—(AP)—Curiosity as to a fourth member of the crew on the projected trans-Atlantic flight of Commander Richard E. Byrd's giant monoplane America ran high today as unfavorable weather over the North Atlantic caused postponement of the take-off at least until tomorrow night.

Commander Byrd said he had been deluged with applications from persons desirous of making the flights to Paris in the America. Many of these requests he said, had come from women, but "the fourth, if there is one, will be a man," he said.

The present members of the crew are Bert Acosta and Lieutenant G. O. Noville.

"We are carrying 1300 gallons of gasoline, sufficient to take four to Paris and beyond," Byrd said.

A report that the America instead of landing at La Bourget Field, Paris, would continue until its gas supply was exhausted gained credence at the Byrd hangar at Roosevelt field.

TOMMY ARMOUR WINS PLAYOFF FOR GOLF CUP

Defeated the Sensational Young Player from Pacific Coast

Oakmont, Pa., June 1.—(AP)—Tommy Armour today is open golf champion of the United States, thanks as much to his heart as his hands. The Scotchman who is pro at the Congressional Country Club of Washington in defeating Harry Cooper, Los Angeles pro in an 18 hole play off yesterday after a tie at 72 holes in the open, won his title with a courageous exhibition. The score was 76 to 79, but the three strikes were gained late in the day, two coming at the 16th and the third at the 18th where it did not mean anything.

Off in front, Armour saw his lead shot away and finally was forced to stand by and see his youthful rival go two strokes ahead. The veteran much older in golf than his years would suggest, staged his comeback with a long putt at the 15th where he squared the count. His victory seemed certain when he came from the rough close by the pin on the 16th where Cooper floundered in a trap and finally took five strokes.

Armour, a modest golfer, explained his victory by saying he "got the breaks."

Cooper, a sensational shot maker, was not downhearted and declared "I was lucky to get as far as I did."

Seen From Press Boxes in Major League Ball Parks

(BY THE AP)
The Yanks beat the St. Louis Browns by 3-2 in a game without an extra base hit or the services of Babe Ruth, who left the lineup after the first inning because of a wrenched knee.

The Yanks' closest rivals, the White Sox, meanwhile were falling farther behind. The third place Athletics, striving hard to get back neck and neck with the Yanks scored an 8-3 victory over the White Sox on the pitching of Rube Walberg.

Recruit Pitcher Lisenbee helped the Senators to their 3-1 victory over Detroit while the Cleveland Indians replaced the Browns in sixth place by taking two from the lowly Red Sox, 6-3 and 4-3.

Except for the Indians, not a western team was victorious, even the National League leaders, the Pirates, and the Chicago Cubs, who are pressing them so closely, went down in their first defeat in 13 starts. Their winning streak was the longest of the season.

The pleasure of breaking it fell to the Phillies who did so by 12-2.

As surprising was the two run rally in the ninth with which the Braves downed the Pirates by 8-7.

Brooklyn accounted for the third eastern victory in the day three National League games by dropping the down trodden Cincinnati Reds by 5-3.

The Ultimate Argument for Christianity

When a Christian, in the power of his faith, endures hardship, remains patient under oppression, or performs notable service to the community, we have an apologetic for Christianity stronger than sermons or books.

Peter's great sermon at Pentecost converted three thousand of his hearers. We have no record of how many thousands have been converted by the godly living of the Christian people.

That number is beyond computation. The practicing rather than the preaching of sermons has been the main element in the church's advance. What powerful arguments have been arrayed against the faith of Jesus! How often has Christianity, under the blows of hostile critics, been left for dead beside the road that runs through the ages!

But there has been one argument never to be overthrown. That argument is the multitude of human beings inspired with hope, strengthened in tribulation, established in righteousness by the power of Christianity. There are at least a few of these victorious people in every community, equipped in mind and heart to "put to silence the ignorance of foolish men."

Dr. Fosdick tells of a conference with the eunuchs at West Point when the question was asked—What is Christianity? Some one in the audience replied, "It is Oscar Wesoover!" One young man living the life was worth a whole course in

Obey the Law

The vast majority of those who read these words do not need to be admonished to respect the Constitution of the United States, but they can do a great deal by precept and example to encourage others to respect it. The last few years have put good citizenship to an acid test. Thousands who wave the flag and call themselves one hundred per cent Americans are regularly breaking a part of the fundamental law of their country. It is a part of the law they do not happen to like. Therefore, they treat it with contempt and flaunt their disobedience in the sight of their countrymen. The eighteenth amendment has not made bad citizens and law breakers. It has simply revealed them. What did Peter mean when he said, "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake?" Consider carefully the question whether the church has not unwisely abandoned its old time temperance instruction in favor of exclusive emphasis on law enforcement.—W. C. T. U.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America, following Emmet Murtough, to whom she is betrothed. Neither Kildare nor Murtough hold steady jobs and Sheila is compelled to work as a waitress. She makes friends with Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer whose kindness interests her. Rory wins his last fight. Murtough has joined a band of bootleggers and reveals plans to move $150,000 worth of contraband to a cabaret girl. She sends Murtough to join the rivals.

Murtough read the note. He could not understand why he should be summoned from his bed at this hour in the morning, but he knew that Clara was a clever girl and he accepted her statement that a big thing for him was waiting in Room 717. Quickly he dressed and after a cup of coffee at one of the all night lunch stands he hailed a taxi and gave instructions to drive to the Marmaduke Hotel. The elevator boy showed no surprise when he stepped in and asked to be taken to the room. When he knocked on the door it opened and Schermer stepped out.

"I'm Murtough. Did you send for me?"

"What have you got to show for it?"

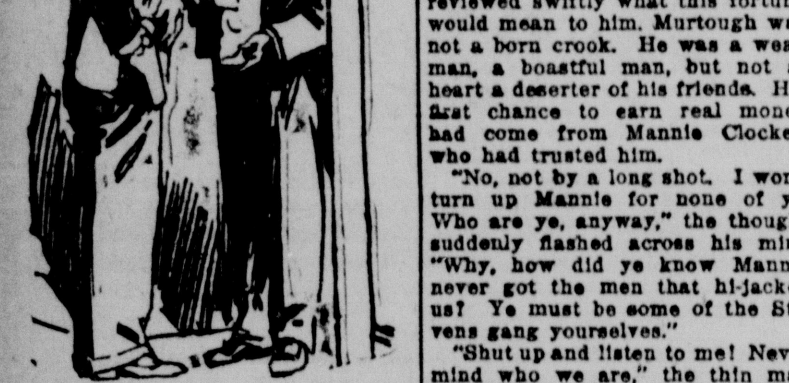

Murtough after a search found the note which he had crammed into his inside pocket. In looking for it he revealed the gun holster under his coat. Schermer read the note.

"Give me your gun," he demanded. "This is a friendly talk."

"How do I know?"

"You know this lady, don't you? Can't you take her word for it?"

Murtough drew his gun and threw open the door to Schermer, who threw open

"Give me your gun," he demanded.

the door and let Murtough enter the room in front of him. Schermer closed the door and called:

"All right, he's here!"

The room was evidently a parlor with bedrooms connecting, one on either side. Curtains screened the doors. The curtains were thrust aside and two men in dressing gowns stepped into the center of the room. They were the men who were the companions of Schermer the night he had first talked with Clara. The tall, thin stranger took the situation in hand.

"Sit down," he invited, pointing to a convenient chair. "Gus, pass the glasses, he may want a drink." Murtough filled the small glass and swallowed it. He drew a package of cigarettes and lighted one. Schermer's two companions sat down comfortably opposite him, but Schermer kept to his feet and idled between Murtough and the hallway door.

"We think you can help us. If you do, we can help you. We know all about you. You are working for Mannie Clocker and we asked you to come here to offer you a better job. That's all right, isn't it?"

"Yes, str." Murtough was abashed at the coolness of the spokesman. "What is it you want me to do?"

"We'll come to that. First, let me set something straight in your mind which you may not have thought of. A man is worth just so much to his employer, and an employer never pays for more than he gets. Right?" Murtough nodded. "All right, you are worth just a driver's pay to Clocker. We think you'll be worth a lot more to us, if you learn how to play our game."

"What is it—driving?"

"Driving to a certain spot and doing what we tell you to do."

Murtough squirmed and nervously flung his cigarette into the empty fireplace. He could not understand what this mystery meant. Instantly there arose the fear of a trap and a frame-up! He had walked blindly into it, had even given up his gun to his captors. If Clara was all right, she was smart and must have known what she was doing when she sent him there.

"What do you mean?"

"You have been driving to Clocker's landing station in Long Island. We know that he is unloading a shipment of stuff there next Friday and Saturday nights. We want you to drive us to that landing station tonight and give us the lowdown on how the land lays around it."

"Not much! I've never been an informer and I won't be one now." Murtough started to his feet and Schermer backed to the door, his right hand in his pocket. Murtough saw the point of the gun bulging out the cloth of the coat.

"Sit down, sit down. You're a business man and you're among business men. I haven't finished yet." Murtough sat back and lighted another cigarette. "Better have another drink, you seem nervous."

Murtough did and the leader continued:

"We'll have a car ready at three this afternoon. You are to guide it. When we get to the vicinity of the landing station, you are to show us just what the layout is, how far it is from the shore to the buildings, where the trucks can be parked and all about it."

"Mannie'd bump me off!"

"Anybody with enough money in his pocket doesn't have to fear that, besides, we'll employ you permanently and see that you work outside where Clocker's gang would never find you. Besides, he will never know who gave us the information, if you feel you'd like to stay on with him. But he's no good, never has been, never pays his men enough money. He makes thousands; they, one dollar a piece."

The speaker stopped. Murtough reviewed swiftly what this fortune would mean to him. Murtough was not a born crook. He was a weak man, a boastful man, but not at heart a deserter of his friends. His last chance to earn real money had come from Mannie Clocker, who had trusted him.

"No, not by a long shot. I won't turn up Mannie for none of ye. Who are ye, anyway?" the thought suddenly flashed across his mind.

"Why, how did ye know Mannie never got the men that hijacked us? Ye must be some of the Stevens gang yourselves."

"Shut up and listen to me! Never mind who we are," the thin man arose and stood towering over him.

"We asked you to do this job. We offered you good pay for it. Now, let me tell you that you are going to do it, and whether you get paid or not is going to be up to us. Hear me!"

"I won't turn up Mannie Clocker!"

"All right, we'll turn you up to Mannie Clocker."

"Me? Turn me up?"

"Certainly, where do you suppose we got the information? It came right from you. We'll turn our trick and we'll let Mannie know just how and where we got the information."

Murtough's thoughts raced back to the night he had spent with Clara. What had he said? Who had overheard him? Had Clara given the information to these men?

"More than that, Mannie will get that little moll of yours that you tell too much to as well."

So Clara had broken confidence. It was she who had let these men know about the cargo due in from sea.

"Did she tell you?"

"Never mind. We know that you talked too much and we can prove it to Clocker's satisfaction, prove it so well that the police will find you floating in the Hudson some morning."

"I'm not afraid."

"You may not be afraid for yourself, but you certainly are man enough to protect a girl when her life is in danger, and all due to your own stupidity."

The tall man sat down again and slipped from a glass. He pressed no further on Murtough while several minutes passed. Murtough suddenly felt himself responsible for all that had occurred. Why had he talked so much that night? Someone in Corrigan's must have listened and repeated his conversation to these men. But that should not complicate Clara. She was in no wise to blame. And she must not suffer because of his carelessness with the secrets of Mannie Clocker. Schermer renewed the proposition.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Posting at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called VILAK has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARDERBY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN SUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, and recovers the child, unharmed, without finding its abductors.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He decides to chase his barber shop and stick to the character of Attorney Davis. He, Elise and Sunnally are breakfasting when word is brought that a messenger has come to see her from VILLAPA, her overseer at VILLAPA.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XX

ELISE put down the fork with which she had been nibbling at an omelet. "Send him in at once, please."

The maid hurried out. In a moment the door into the kitchen opened again. A brawny half-breed Brazilian, clad in thick heavy blue overalls and hip boots, stamped into the room, leaving great splashes of mud on the floor at every step. He strode up to Elise and, taking off his hat, stood awkwardly before her.

"You have news for me, amigos?" she asked politely, when he said not to speak for a moment.

"Yes, senhorita." He rubbed his thick fingers along his muddy trousers. "I come from your fazenda at Villapa. Meester Wilson have sent me. Tell me ride fast as can. He say tell you food getting very bad Villapa. Say too he very seck and can do not much, afraid much will be washed away. Wants you come quick. He not say, but he very, very seck. I, Miguel, all others, think he die."

Elise rose from the table. "You'll have to excuse me," she said to her guests. "I'll have to go out to Villapa at once. It's been criminal of me to have left poor Wilson there ill and alone. Criminal." She called to Maria to have her horse made ready.

"Just a minute, Elise," Vilak said coolly. He gazed sharply at the mud-spattered messenger. "Are you sure this chap works on your fazenda?"

Her forehead knitted into a frown. "What do you mean? Of course he works on the fazenda?"

"You've seen him?"

She hesitated, then nodded. "I'm sure I've seen him. Several times. Anyway, even if I haven't, what difference would it make? I can't know every one of the 500 laborers at Villapa, can I, when they change so often? What on earth are you driving at?"

"Nothing, if you're sure you know your man. Only, it's faintly possible that this message may not be what it appears to be, and that cal strength, she could do far more than you. I say absolutely that it's safer to leave him here than to take him along."

"All right, I don't like to. But in a matter of this sort, I'll follow your advice. Because you know. If you say it's safe, I'll do it. And besides, I'll have Schwartz come over and stay here for the five or six hours I have to be away. If I could help it, I wouldn't leave him even for a minute. But I can't let Wilson die without lifting a finger to help him."

In a few moments, Elise, Vilak and the old man were once more on their horses, the chemist, to Vilak's surprise, having doggedly insisted on accompanying them, though his weariness was manifest in his withered face. The half-breed who had brought the message rode ahead. Vilak set the pace at a quick trot.

Elise nervously touched her horse, who was lingering to chew a choice bit of grass. "I'm glad I haven't a criminologist's mind
